

Perspectives in High Energy Physics

Halina Abramowicz

Tel Aviv University

After a short overview of our present understanding of the Standard Model of fundamental constituents of matter and their interactions, I will discuss the concepts of future high energy accelerators presently developed within the particle physics community.